Description

A charming Guignol theater made of painted and partially gilded wood, accompanied by three glove puppets. Its façade, inspired by classical architecture, features a curved pediment, foliage-decorated corbels, and applied medallions. The inscription "GUIGNOL," gilded on a red background, surmounts the stage, framed by a decorative frieze and a painted lambrequin imitating a theater curtain. The removable backdrop depicts the Acropolis of Athens and the Parthenon. This panel can be removed to change the scenery. The lower section is adorned with a polychrome printed scene depicting costumed figures in a garden. The removable stage backdrop depicts the Acropolis of Athens and the Parthenon.
