Description

Important Venetian Louis XV-style console table - Carved, lacquered, and gilded wood - Red marble top Spectacular Louis XV-style console table, richly carved and openwork, resting on four fluted legs joined by a substantial crossbar. The scalloped apron features an extremely abundant rocaille decoration composed of shells, scrolls, foliage, flowers, and volutes, with a remarkable openwork lattice motif at the center surmounting a large shell. The strongly arched legs are also adorned with foliage and floral carvings. They are joined by a highly ornate crossbar, centered with a large rocaille composition. The piece as a whole features an elegant celadon-green lacquer finish accented with gilding, offering a beautiful contrast and particularly highlighting the richness of the carving. It is topped by a substantial red
