Description

A beautiful 19th-century writing desk , in the Louis-Philippe style , featuring a front with four drawers and a hidden drop-down panel in the upper section. The piece is finished with a very attractive burl walnut veneer, featuring particularly decorative and well-defined grain patterns on the front. It is topped with an elegant veined black marble top with a molded edge. The drop-down panel reveals the interior of the secretary desk, which includes several small drawers and storage compartments, providing a practical space for writing or filing documents. The front is adorned with brass ring handles, as well as three keyholes. The piece rests on four straight, slightly scalloped legs. The entire piece retains a beautiful antique patina. Dimensions: H93 x W112 x D58
