Description

Three-vial hourglass with a brass frame, 18th century. Glass, brass, and sand. 12.4 cm high; 5 cm wide. Three-vial hourglass, two of whose vials were blown together. Inside a hexagonal cage held together by six columns, three bulbs containing sand run out in 15 minutes (the flow stops after a few minutes). A fine example of one of the classic French hourglasses from the 17th and 18th centuries.
