Art Deco desk with built-in metal lamp This exceptional Art Deco desk dating from around 1930 stands out for its elegantly curved shape and its precious wood veneer with lively grain patterns.
Black-lacquered frames highlight its semicircular structure and accentuate its architectural lines. Wide, flat supports alternate with openings reminiscent of small windows. Despite its imposing dimensions, the desk thus retains a sense of lightness and openness. Its most distinctive feature is the Art Deco lamp made of chrome-plated metal, which is integrated into the piece. Its slender arm, articulated according to a rigorous geometry, supports a domed metal shade that contrasts with the warmth of the wood. The combination of curved forms, refined veneer, and shiny metal makes this desk a rare and cohesive example of French Art Deco.
