Description

Antonio De Nisco is a prolific Italian artist who expressed himself through painting, ceramics, and sculpture, as well as in the fields of interior design and even advertising. His work as a designer during the 1960s and 1970s is often associated with the Belgian school. The coffee table offered for sale is a perfect example of design combined with true pictorial artistry. Indeed, the motif painted on the ceramic tiles is a true work of abstract art that could very well be displayed on a wall like a painting. The composition is very well executed, and the colors are consistently vibrant. The table is in beautiful original condition. It was acquired from the family that originally purchased it new around 1962 in Belgium. Here, then, is a piece of furniture that is both practical and highly decorative, in period
