Description

A small column from the Grand Tour period, crafted from fine Green Alps marble, featuring a smooth shaft mottled with intense shades of dark green and black. Roman workshop, 19th century. These small columns were used to display small works of art, such as a small bronze statue or a small classical bust; aristocratic travelers undertaking the "Grand Tour" in Italy loved to purchase miniature reproductions of our works of art to display in their libraries or studies once they returned home. Good condition, with minor signs of age. Dimensions H 55 cm Base D 20 cm Upper base D 13
