Description

An elegant gaming table from the early 19th century, a fine example of refined Neapolitan cabinetmaking. Crafted from fine mahogany-veined wood veneer, it stands out for the extraordinary quality of its grain, enhanced by a warm, deep polish. The circular top is covered in leather--originally designed for gaming--and framed by a finely inlaid band that underscores its understated yet sophisticated style. The rim is embellished with small, discreet, and functional hidden drawers, ideal for storing cards or gaming accessories. The solid and elegant central support features a tripod base with sculpted legs of great character, which provide stability and a sculptural touch to the piece as a whole. A piece of great charm, perfect both as a game table and as a prestigious decorative element, capable of
