Description

A charming antique Aubusson tapestry dating from the 17th century, featuring an elegant foliage composition in a remarkable harmony of blues, blue-greens, browns, and golden beige tones. In the center unfolds a lively landscape of tall trees and foliage, with abundant vegetation rendered in numerous shades of blue. The eye is drawn through this undergrowth scene to the various planes of the landscape, where clusters of flowers and lush vegetation appear. The composition is highlighted by a wide floral border, which is particularly decorative, featuring numerous flowers and foliage in natural and bluish tones. The dark background of the central panel further accentuates the richness and depth of the colors. The piece exudes charm and character, with the patina and subtly faded hues
