Description

A magnificent and imposing antique farmhouse table made of solid oak with a natural patina. It dates from the 19th century. It has two extension leaves, allowing it to seat up to 16 people (length 320 cm). The tabletop is assembled using solid oak marquetry, known as "Versailles parquet," which was traditionally found in grand estates. It rests on four large, simply turned legs joined by crossbars. Its dimensions are 200 x 100 cm, height 73 cm. (Length with the two extensions: 320 cm). This item is also on display in my store in Morbihan, in southern Brittany, where you can pick it up if you wish.
