Description

An elegant, large-scale birdcage from the Napoleon III period, featuring a beautiful design with slender posts and an openwork dome, richly adorned with gilded decorative motifs. The piece rests on a gilded wooden base, adorned with floral relief decorations and ornamental friezes. The cage still contains two songbirds, beautifully displayed on their branches and foliage. It is equipped with its original clockwork mechanism, which is in working order and activates the birds' movement and song. A particularly original decorative object, typical of the refined taste of the Napoleon III period.
