Description

A magnificent decorative Art Nouveau-style (circa 1900) pewter dish depicting a bucolic scene inspired by nature and fairy tales: a young nude woman watering daisies / water lilies against a backdrop of rippling water lily leaves. Artist: Signed "B. Jouant" (Benjamin Jouant) in the lower left corner of the piece. Material / Finish: Cast pewter with a beautiful original patina in shades of gray and silver. Style: Art Nouveau, characteristic of the organic, floral motifs and feminine figures of the Belle Époque. Versatility / Mounting: Can be used flat as a trinket dish or centerpiece, or hung on the wall using the built-in hook on the back.
