Description

KONGO, Democratic Republic of the Congo. A remarkable ebony wood sculpture, carved in bas-relief and depicting scenes of daily life in the villages of the Loango region. Created by an anonymous sculptor in the early 20th century, this work demonstrates true artistic talent and great finesse of execution. Man, animal, and nature are intimately intertwined, forming a lively and harmonious composition, rich in detail and narrative. The strength of this sculpture also lies in its surprising modernity. Through its lines, balance, and construction, it blends naturally into both a contemporary interior and a more classical setting, bringing a warm, authentic, and unique presence. Good condition, with normal wear that does not affect the piece's aesthetic appeal. Dimensions: Depth 8 x Height 33 x Width
