380 EUR

Period : 20th century

Condition : Bon état

Material : Water color

Description

A beautiful watercolor depicting a picturesque view of Colmar, with its historic houses lining the canal, in a luminous and delicately colored composition that evokes the city's historic district. Work signed "Boursin" in the lower right corner. The artist skillfully captures the Alsatian architecture, the rooftops, and the reflections on the water, using a soft color palette characteristic of early 20th-century travel watercolors. The watercolor is mounted under glass, with its original mat, in a substantial molded and gilded wooden frame decorated with foliage motifs, which is particularly decorative. Condition: The watercolor is in good overall condition. A few foxing spots and signs of age are visible, mainly on the mat. The antique frame shows slight signs of wear consistent with its age.
