Description

"Motherhood," a drawing enhanced by Jules Germain in 1834. A young boy and his mother are embracing and holding hands. The young woman is seated, her arm resting on a small side table adorned with a small bouquet of flowers. A closed book also lies on the side table. This tender embrace surely interrupted the young mother's reading. The subjects are dressed in the fashion of the time: a dress with "Gigots" sleeves, a wide belt buckle, a muslin collar... In the background, a wallpaper frieze featuring an interlaced floral pattern, set between two panels of wood paneling, hints at a tastefully decorated interior. This drawing, enhanced with a few touches of watercolor, is signed by Jules Germain, dated 1834, and presented in its original frame made of blackened wood gilded with gold.
