Description

Max Bouvet (1854-1940) Nicolas Maximilien Bouvet, known as Max Bouvet, born on December 3, 1854, in La Rochelle and died on August 5, 1940, in Joigny?, was a French opera singer--a baritone--as well as a Post-Impressionist plein air painter. As a painter, Max Bouvet is known primarily for his seascapes in a Post-Impressionist style, often depicting panoramas of Brittany and the Vendée. It is not uncommon for opera and theater artists to pursue, with passion--and sometimes with talent--an art form outside their own field. "The joy of life lies in change," as the proverb says. *Moonrise at Twilight* is now on display at the Reims Museum. Progress was evident; so too was the growing fame of Max Bouvet's seascapes and landscapes--vibrant with warm light and infinitely
