Description

Oil on canvas. Signed in the center (along the neckline of the girl's dress). From the Campari corporate collection. A central figure of the Lombard "Scapigliatura" movement, Conconi developed a refined and experimental style, taking the artistic explorations of Cremona and Ranzoni to their logical conclusion and later reinterpreting them through a symbolic-Divisionist lens. He painted several portraits in which the influence of Tranquillo Cremona is evident, while he revealed his originality in genre paintings, landscapes, and fantastical, imaginative compositions. The painting is presented in a frame from the first half of the 20th century. ARAROT0325856
