Description

An elegant Napoleon III-style pedestal table, likely made in the mid-20th century, around 1950-1970. It features a circular tabletop in veined pink marble, set within a mahogany-toned varnished wood frame and accented by a beaded border in gilded metal. The band is adorned with an openwork frieze featuring a floral design, likely made of brass or gilded metal, creating a beautiful decorative effect. The central base is embellished with classical gilded metal ornaments: acanthus leaves, garlands, decorative motifs, and stylized female heads. The piece rests on three curved legs, giving it an elegant and balanced silhouette. This pedestal table draws on the decorative vocabulary of the Napoleon III style, but it is likely a 20th-century decorative reproduction rather than a 19th-century period
