Description

An elegant pair of ornamental vases (cassolette) in red marble veined with white and gray, of the "Rouge Royal" or "Griotte" type, embellished with refined mercury-gilded bronze mounts. Each vase features a slender, ovoid body with a narrow neck and a removable lid topped by a finely chiseled pine cone finial. The two handles are shaped like swan necks, with engraved plumage and heads turned downward--an element of great visual impact. On the body, garlands of roses and leaves hang from a ribbon bow, featuring rich relief decoration. The vase rests on a pod-shaped cup foot in gilded bronze, which in turn is secured to a matching square marble plinth. Provenance: France Period: second half of the 1800s Style: Empire Dimensions: 25x22x56h
