Description

A fine and rare blown-glass bowl vase in green glass, produced in Murano by the F.lli Toso glassworks circa 1930. The softly rounded, globular form is distinguished by the sophisticated combination of aventurine powder and lattimo glass, incorporated into the glass mass and enhanced by the transparency of the green ground. The applied handles and rim provide a refined sculptural accent and contribute to the harmonious balance of the composition. An accomplished example of Murano glass production of the 1930s, reflecting the period's continued exploration of traditional blown-glass techniques combined with sophisticated chromatic and material effects.
