Description

An important and magnificent Louis XV chest of drawers made in Paris around the mid-18th century and bearing the stamp and signature of master cabinetmaker Jean-Baptiste Tuart. This piece, of extraordinary craftsmanship, is veneered in precious rosewood and amaranth, featuring elegant reserve motifs and herringbone grain patterns. The richly detailed, mercury-gilded bronze applications, finely chiseled, adorn the side panels, handles, and molded profiles, lending the piece an elegance characteristic of great 18th-century Parisian cabinetmaking. The original top, crafted from warm-toned breccia marble, completes the sumptuous harmony of the piece. An outstanding example of French craftsmanship of the period, this chest of drawers combines refined proportions with the decorative
