Description

Still Life, oil on canvas, from the circle or workshop of Pedro de Camprobín, 17th century. Dimensions: 74 cm high x 59 cm wide without frame, 86 cm high x 72 cm wide with frame. Relining. The composition centers on a lavish bouquet of flowers arranged in a dark glass vase, placed on a shelf and accompanied by several pieces of fruit. Among the varieties depicted are tulips, carnations, jasmine, and roses, rendered with particular attention to their various shapes, colors, and textures. On either side of the vase are pears and a partially peeled peach, creating a contrast between the delicacy and vitality of the flowers and the more everyday nature of the fruit. The peach cut in half alludes to the brevity of life and the fleeting nature of beauty. Overall, the work follows the Sevillian
