Description

Original Art Deco-era work on paper depicting an elegant, royal, and exotic procession. The composition, which is highly dramatic and visually striking, depicts a noble or sovereign figure reclining on an imposing howdah atop a majestic elephant. The scene is rich in refined details: the elephant handler (mahout) atop the elephant, a dignitary on horseback armed with a mace, and several attendants in traditional attire and turbans bearing chests and offerings as gifts. The work stands out for its clean lines, stylized drapery, and distinct geometric sensibility--iconic traits of the Orientalist style of the 1920s and 1930s.
