Description

Here is a true work of textile art. First, there is its striking pictorial quality. Surrounding a powerful central medallion is an almost free-flowing composition, where geometric motifs stand alongside large, stylized floral forms. Deep reds, blues, greens, ivory, and touches of yellow stand out against a dark background, lending the piece remarkable richness and depth. Its rarity, age, and the quality of its craftsmanship make it a true collector's item. These antique Persian khorjins, which have survived to the present day in their original condition, are now found primarily in specialized collections--whether private or museum-based. But it is probably its state of preservation that is most impressive. We must remember that this is a bag made in the mid-19th century--nearly two centuries ago. Yet everything is still there: the freshness and vibrancy of the colors, the extreme precision of the knotted stitch, the borders, the closure system still intact, and even the back, which is remarkably well-preserved. The colors have retained a striking, timeless depth and luminosity! A utilitarian object that has, over time, become a true textile gem--an exceptional testament to the refinement of ancient Persian craftsmanship.KhorjinPersiaKnottedWool on woolPlant-based dyesMid-19th centuryDimensions: 72 x 70 cmExceptional conditionChoosing an antique rug or textile is often a serendipitous encounter.If one of our pieces catches your eye, or if you'd like more information or photos, I'd be happy to speak with you.Laurent ConsulBeauty of Kilims06 42 61 73
