Description

Coffee table, known as a "chiffonnière," with marquetry on all sides in rosewood and violetwood; Louis XV period, 18th century. The top features a marquetry design of four rosewood leaves accented by a narrow band of violetwood laid against the grain. The ornate front features three drawers inlaid with rosewood within violetwood frames; the top drawer serves as a writing desk and is lined with antique leather with a brown patina. It rests on four curved legs inlaid with a chevron pattern. Parisian work from the Louis XV period.
