Description

Large baluster vase in deep cobalt-blue porcelain, richly decorated with an elaborate gilt-bronze mount in the Louis XVI style. The ovoid body is encircled at the upper section by a finely chiselled gilt-bronze frieze, from which descend lavish garlands of flowers and foliage tied with ribbon bows. The lower part of the vase is set within an openwork gilt-bronze mount decorated with acanthus leaves, resting on a circular base. The neck is also highlighted by a gilt-bronze mount with foliate decoration. The contrast between the deep cobalt-blue porcelain and the richness of the gilding gives the piece a particularly elegant and decorative presence. On the underside of the base, the piece bears a rectangular "SÈVRES" mark, together with the number 246 impressed into the porcelain body. These marks are clearly
