Description

An elegant 19th-century French floral still life, painted in oil on slate and depicting a delicate bouquet of flowers against a deep black background. The composition features roses, chrysanthemums, and various other flowers in soft shades of white, cream, pink, red, and green. The dark background creates a particularly striking contrast with the flowers and accentuates the decorative quality of the work. The painting is set in a remarkable antique gilded wooden frame, richly adorned with scrollwork foliage motifs, floral decorations, and carved details at the corners. The frame lends the piece a particularly elegant appearance, well-suited to a classic or characterful interior. The work retains its antique and authentic appearance, with craquelure and various signs of age visible on both the painted
