Description

Brass trivet, a typical example of trench craftsmanship or "soldier's work" created during World War I (1914-1918). Quality of craftsmanship: The engraving is delicate and skillful, a far cry from the sometimes very rudimentary pieces made in haste. The details of the Art Nouveau foliage and the monogram are the work of a skilled soldier. The basework: The four legs, featuring complex metallic scrollwork, lend the object a true three-dimensional quality, making it more refined than a simple flat brass plate or an engraved lid. The personalized monogram: A superbly intertwined two-letter monogram (M and J) adds significant historical and sentimental value, often suggesting a gift intended for a mother, a wife, or a fiancée. Good condition. Dimensions: 28 cm x 28 cm.- This
