Description

A charming Viennese bronze depicting a pair of foxes sawing through a tree trunk. The expressive modeling and the humorous scene are characteristic of late 19th-century Viennese art. Marked on the blade of the saw with a "B" inside an amphora, the mark of the workshop Franz Xaver Bergmann. Austrian work, Vienna, circa 1900. In good overall condition. Some wear to the polychrome paint and slight traces of verdigris, consistent with its age.
