Description

Louis XV-style game table with marquetry - Late 19th century
Elegant Louis XV-style game table made of veneer and marquetry, dating from the late 19th century. It features a beautiful floral marquetry design, composed of bouquets of flowers, foliage, and scrollwork, set against a paneled veneer. All four sides are also richly inlaid. It rests on four curved legs, accented with beautiful bronze fittings. The tabletop is encircled by a bronze rail and adorned with decorative motifs at the four corners. The tabletop opens to reveal a game table covered in green felt, bringing the total depth to 105.5 cm. The interior also features a storage compartment decorated with geometric veneers. A lovely game table, particularly decorative due to the richness of its marquetry and the elegance of its
