Description

Porcelain biscuit sculpture from the Sèvres National Porcelain Manufactory, bearing a rectangular stamp (Sèvres); the intaglio stamp features the letter S surmounted by the year of manufacture (1927), framed by the letters DN (Domaine National). Next to the stamp are the engraved initials "TL" (or "FL"). A stylized animal sculpture in white bisque depicting Pompon's dove, perched on a monolithic Art Deco-style pedestal. François Pompon (1855-1933) was a French sculptor famous for his animal sculptures with simplified and refined forms. Long overshadowed as a collaborator for other great masters--notably Auguste Rodin and René de Saint-Marceaux--he did not achieve resounding success until the age of 67 at the 1922 Salon d'Automne. His masterpiece, *The Polar
