Description

"PORTRAIT OF A YOUNG GIRL" Oil on panel. A charming portrait of a young girl with blue eyes, depicted in a bust portrait against a dark background. The young model, with long brown hair, is wearing a light-colored blouse adorned with a bow at the collar. Signed in the upper left: "R-de Ochoa" Rafael de Ochoa y Madrazo (Madrid, 1858-1935) was a Spanish painter from the prestigious Madrazo family of artists. The son of writer and art critic Eugenio de Ochoa, he grew up in a particularly cultured environment, surrounded by several great 19th-century Spanish painters. Trained at the École des Beaux-Arts in Paris, he developed an elegant and refined style of painting, devoted primarily to portraits and scenes of daily life. His works are distinguished by the precision of his
