Description

ALPHONSE STENGELIN (1852-1938) --
LANDSCAPECharcoal DrawingAlphonse Stengelin, born in Lyon in 1852 and died in Satigny in 1938, was a painter, engraver, and lithographer of the Lyon School. A student of Joseph Guichard at the École des Beaux-Arts in Lyon, he developed a body of work devoted primarily to landscapes, rural scenes, and seascapes. He regularly visited the Netherlands, whose landscapes feature prominently in his work.His work is represented in several French and European public collections, notably at the Musée des Beaux-Arts in Lyon, Marseille, and Nantes; at the Musée Fabre in Montpellier; as well as at the Geneva Museum of Art and History and the Rijksmuseum in Amsterdam, which holds several of the artist's works.Stengelin's presence
