

Large Vermeil Laurel And Oak Wreath In Its Case - 19th Century, Napoleon III

500 EUR

Period : 19th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Vermeil

Description

An antique and elegant honorary wreath made of vermeil, featuring finely crafted laurel and oak branches. The leaves are crafted from embossed and chiseled metal, with a beautiful, lifelike rendering of the veins and relief details. The wreath alternates between laurel leaves, oak leaves, and acorns, all arranged on a flexible frame. This type of wreath was presented in the 19th century as an award or honorary token in artistic, literary, academic, or institutional circles. It is preserved in its original case lined with padded green satin, bearing the gold-stamped inscription "Le Médailleur - Paris - Fabrique de Conservation." The case shows visible signs of wear and tear from use, while the wreath is in excellent condition. 19th-century French work.

Diameter of the wreath: 19 cm.
