Description

Louis XVI-style display cabinet with marquetry - White marble - 19th century
Elegant Louis XVI-style display cabinet, crafted with marquetry, dating from the late 19th century. This straight-sided piece rests on four tapered legs topped with bronze feet. It is crowned by a white marble top that extends slightly beyond the sides. The upper section, glazed on the front and sides, opens with a door and provides a beautiful display for collectibles. The interior features two levels lined with green fabric, which casts a bright light on the displayed objects. The lower section opens with a solid, particularly decorative door, adorned with radiating fan-shaped marquetry, which is also found on the side panels. The entire piece is accented with geometric marquetry borders and adorned with
