Description

A half-statue-style white Carrara marble mantelpiece, carved in the 19th century and in perfect condition, in the Neoclassical style, featuring sculptures of flawless craftsmanship and remarkable quality. Its fascia is decorated with a festoon fastened with ribbon bows within a recessed panel, featuring a pattern of droplets, flanked by laurel branches on either side. Its side panels are carved with a rosette featuring three rows of overlapping leaves, supported by a double scroll of leaves, resting on an upright acanthus corbel emerging from a four-besant molding. Its tubular panels are adorned with a cascade of laurel branches tied with a ribbon. Its side panels feature a tabletop-style panel housing bronze fireboxes. The depth, including the floor slab, is 90 cm. Its body length is 149 cm. The
