Description

Large signed watercolor - Religious procession and crowd in front of a cathedral - 20th century A beautiful and significant watercolor on paper, depicting a spectacular religious procession or folk festival, brought to life by a large crowd gathered in front of an imposing religious architectural complex. The particularly lively composition features numerous figures: clergy, pilgrims, and participants carrying banners and standards, some adorned with religious symbols. In the foreground, the figures are rendered with great expressiveness, while in the background the cathedral's various towers and domes stand out. The artist employs a subtle palette dominated by greens, yellows, ochres, and blues, enhanced by very freehand ink or pencil drawing. The rapid rendering of the silhouettes, the clustering of figures, and the large areas left unpainted lend the composition a great deal of movement and spontaneity. The work is signed in the lower right corner. The signature is clearly visible in the photographs but has yet to be identified. Work from the second half of the 20th century, circa the 1950s-1970s. Presented under glass in its antique frame with gold and green moldings. A beautiful decorative work, of generous dimensions, whose subject matter and the density of the composition lend it a particularly intriguing presence. Technique: watercolor and drawing on paper. Estimated date: second half of the 20th century, circa 1950-1970. Signature: signed lower right; signature to be identified. Dimensions of the work: 40 × 59 cm. Condition: good overall condition; some visible signs of age on the paper, as shown in the photographs.
