Description

Fine-Quality 19th-Century William IV Period Rosewood Center Table with Golden Color and Patina
This large and handsome early 19th-century William IV period center table or dining table is crafted from beautifully figured rosewood, and features a circular top along with a turned baluster stem and a lapped carved collar. The table is elegantly supported by a richly carved solid rosewood triform pedestal, raised on three large turned bun feet with concealed original brass casters. Made in England circa 1835, it exemplifies fine craftsmanship. This rare William IV-period, well-figured rosewood center, breakfast, or dining table features a circular tilt-top with outstanding contrasting grain above a shallow frieze. The figured rosewood exhibits a rich, warm patina, enhancing its visual appeal.
