Period : 19th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Gold

Description

An antique ring dating from the late 19th century, the Victorian era, crafted in 12-karat yellow gold with a striking silver upper section. The setting features a wide circular shape entirely adorned with rose-cut diamonds of various shapes and sizes, totaling approximately 4.00 ct. The irregular yet harmonious arrangement of the stones is typical of Victorian jewelry. The silver upper section enhances the diamonds and creates an elegant contrast with the yellow gold setting. The rose-cut diamonds retain all the charm of antique, hand-cut stones, characterized by a soft and distinctive brilliance. An antique ring with great personality, a striking presence, and a strong historical character. Period: late 19th century, Victorian era Metal: 12 KT yellow gold and silver Weight: 9.10 g Diamonds: rose-cut,
