Description

A charming portrait of a young woman reading a letter with a delighted expression; a freshly wrapped bouquet of flowers sits on the table, and she wears a faint smile--clearly, it's good news, and happiness is just around the corner!The exhibition catalog stated: Suzanne Busmey, born in Paris, a student of Henri Royer, Marcel Baschet, and Paul Thomas, and residing in Créteil, at La Feuillée on Rue Henry.She exhibited at the Salon des Artistes Français in 1909 and 1912, each time presenting a pastel portrait, including "Portrait of Mlle S. D." (No. 2131) at the 1912 exhibition; this could be the large portrait shown here in the advertisement--it is dated 1910, but she may have exhibited it two years later.Large pastel on paper (in 2 sheets, visible separation in the middle, see photo) 130 x
