Description

Small Louis XV-Period Mahogany Snack Table, circa 1750. Charming Louis XV-Period Mahogany Snack Table, Resting on Curved Legs. This small table opens at the front to reveal a two-tiered compartment, lined with lovely Breccia marble trays in shades of pink, ochre, and reddish hues. Its sides are delicately scalloped and adorned with quatrefoil openwork. Its crossbars are intricately carved, and the edges are sinuous. Very fine mahogany wood. Beautiful patina. A beautifully crafted piece of furniture with understated and refined lines. This table combines practicality--thanks to its storage space--with the ability to display your art and decorative objects. It can be used as an end table, nightstand, or side table. But it also makes for a very attractive piece with its harmonious and delicate curves. With its
