Description

Art Deco side table in walnut veneer - Circa 1930-1940 An elegant small side table in the Art Deco style, likely dating from the 1930s-1940s, featuring beautiful, understated, and harmonious lines characteristic of furniture from this period. Crafted from wood and walnut veneer, it stands out for its rounded forms, its slightly curved front, and its top with softened corners. It opens at the front with two curved doors, fitted with metal knobs featuring floral designs, revealing a storage space that includes an interior drawer adorned with two bands of geometric marquetry, composed of small contrasting motifs. The piece rests on four short, slightly tapered legs, with the two front legs adorned with gilded metal appliqués featuring a fleur-de-lis motif. Its compact dimensions and refined
