Description

A charming French Louis XVI commode crafted from solid oak, dating to around 1800. This compact chest of drawers showcases the restrained elegance and neoclassical symmetry characteristic of the Louis XVI period, featuring two spacious drawers framed by finely carved fluted corner posts and raised on tapered fluted feet. The warm oak displays a beautiful patina developed over more than two centuries, highlighting the natural grain and rich character of the wood. The drawer fronts are fitted with oval brass handles adorned with classical motifs, adding a refined decorative touch while complementing the commode's architectural design. Its modest proportions make this piece particularly versatile, functioning equally well as a bedside chest, side table, hallway storage piece,
