Description

A characterful French Louis XIII side table crafted from walnut, dating to the mid-19th century. The table embodies the enduring appeal of the Louis XIII style, distinguished by its elegant turned legs, robust construction, and richly patinated walnut surface. The rectangular top sits above a practical single drawer fitted with its original iron ring pull, providing discreet storage while maintaining the table's clean and balanced appearance. The beautifully turned legs are connected by an H-form stretcher featuring a decorative central turned finial, a hallmark of Louis XIII-inspired furniture and a testament to the craftsmanship of the period. The warm walnut has developed a deep, lustrous patina over time, highlighting the natural grain and enhancing the table's historic charm. Its compact proportions
