

French Primitive Farmhouse Bench With Splayed Legs, 19th Century

2 000 EUR

Period : 19th century

Condition : Bon état

Material : Oak

Width : 180

Height : 39

Depth : 17

Description

A beautifully weathered French primitive farmhouse bench dating from the 19th century, crafted from a long, thick wooden plank supported by four hand-shaped splayed legs. Honest, utilitarian, and rich in character, the piece embodies the timeless simplicity of rural French craftsmanship. The substantial plank seat reveals decades of use through its wonderfully worn surface, displaying deep grain patterns, tool marks, shrinkage cracks, and a richly developed dark patina. Large exposed wooden pegs remain visible in the seat, highlighting the bench's traditional handcrafted construction and reinforcing its authentic vernacular character. The naturally shaped legs are set at an angle, creating a stable structure while lending the bench an organic sculptural quality. Its elongated

Dealer

Gallery K7

Antiquités et design

Mobile : 0496420048

Kasteeldreef 7

Tielt 8760

proportions make it particularly versatile, serving equally well as seating, a decorative platform, a low console, or a display bench for ceramics, textiles, and collected objects. With its raw texture, aged wood, and understated beauty, this bench is a compelling example of French country furniture and fits effortlessly into rustic, wabi-sabi, primitive, and contemporary interiors alike.