Description

Small carved wooden religious statue depicting a saintly bishop. He wears his traditional mitre on his head, his liturgical vestments consisting of a chasuble and a stole embroidered with a cross; and, most notably, he holds his episcopal crozier (carved from ox bone) in his right hand. Dates from the 19th century. This sculpture is in good overall condition. It has a hole drilled through the bottom (for mounting). Please note: his left hand is missing; there is soiling on the left hand gripping the crozier (perhaps from a previous repair?); and there is wear from age--see photos.
