Description

Gilded wooden bench, Louis XVI style, 19th century
A refined bench crafted from carved and gilded wood, characterized by an elegant symmetrical structure and a sinuous silhouette of great formal sophistication. The rectangular upholstered seat is flanked by two tall, curved armrests, elegantly shaped outward and embellished with gilded moldings featuring ornamental scroll motifs. The lower band features a refined decoration of vertical grooves, embellished in the center by a small ornamental appliqué with a classical motif. The tapered legs are finely fluted and complete the overall design in keeping with the principles of balance, lightness, and elegance characteristic of the Louis XVI style. The bright red fabric upholstery creates a pleasing color contrast with the
