Description

A very elegant curule stool made of solid gilded brass, dating from the 1970s-1980s, in the style of the neoclassical designs by the famous Maison Jansen, in the Hollywood Regency spirit.This beautiful stool features a frame made entirely of brass, with a graceful tubular base featuring arched legs that cross in an X-shape, joined at the center by an elegant diamond-shaped fastener.The seat, made of a curved sheet of brass, has a particularly harmonious curved shape, reminiscent of the curule chairs of antiquity, which were elegantly reinterpreted in the 1970s.The edges of the seat are accented by cylindrical brass elements, adorned with small round-headed fasteners, lending a meticulous finish to the overall design.With its high-quality craftsmanship, elegant proportions, and
