Description

Louis XVI-Style Ladies' Dressing Table with Marquetry - 19th Century A very beautiful ladies' dressing table with precious wood marquetry, in the Louis XVI style, dating from the 19th century. An elegant piece of furniture featuring remarkable geometric marquetry work with a diamond and checkerboard pattern adorning the top, front, and sides. The top consists of three opening sections, including a central lift-up mirror, accompanied by two side flaps that reveal several storage compartments. The front features two side drawers and a sliding central shelf lined with a green desk pad. This dressing table rests on four tapered straight legs, finished with brass feet. A beautiful example of 19th-century cabinetmaking, combining delicate marquetry, elegant proportions, and ingenious design.
