Description

Bronze sculpture by Antun Augustincic (1900-1979) mounted on a white marble pedestal. Depicts Moses holding the Ten Commandments, or the "Tablets of the Law." Signed on the base. Created around 1930 as a model for a monument commissioned by the Gluck family (erected in stone in 1932). Beautiful black patina in very good condition. Augustincic is considered one of the leading Yugoslav sculptors of the 20th century. Among his most notable works are the Monument to Peace located in front of the United Nations Headquarters in New York, the statue of the Miner in front of the International Labor Organization headquarters in Geneva, and the Yekatit 12 Monument in Addis Ababa.
